"The company's privacy policy, which can be read below, is not available on the app itself. When TechCrunch asked for a copy, we were directed to the App Store." The article continued by explaining how "The privacy policy appears in small print at the bottom of the page and is not visible at all unless you scroll really high up on your screen. This feature has also attracted criticism because it appears that people are getting paid for using TikTok's platforms as a means to promote certain products and services. For example, in the January 2021, it was noted that some people were being paid to post videos on TikTok encouraging viewers to buy products from Amway. As many of the creators of these videos are also making money from their efforts by promoting these products, it is possible that they may be getting paid for creating a review video for someone's product. Once again, this is something that requires people to rely on their own judgement in order to decide whether or not they feel comfortable using this feature.",
